

UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL
29 August 1983

SARASOTA, FLORIDA
EX-CIA and KGB agents debate financiers

In what may be a first-of-a-kind conference in international investment circles, former CIA and KGB intelligence officials will join financial advisors next month to debate the effects of the Cold War on the world economy.

The conference, entitled INVESTFEST '83, will be held from Sept. 29 through Oct. 2 at the Hyatt Sarasota.

Featured speakers include William E. Colby, ex-CIA director, E. Howard Hunt, ex-CIA agent and Watergate conspirator and Vladimir Sakhorov, ex-KGB agent and Soviet diplomat.

From the financial community speakers will include Marshall Loeb, managing editor of Money Magazine, Donald Rowe, publisher of the Wall Street Digest and Nicholas Deak, chairman of Deak-Perera, the world's largest foreign exchange firm.

Also at the conference will be George Gallup, the nationally known pollster.